Former President of Poland to Visit Campus

International icon Lech Walesa will be visiting Truman State University as the next guest of the 2001-2002 Distinguished Visiting Scholar Program. He will be on the Truman campus Nov. 1-2.

Walesa has been fighting for freedom in Eastern Europe and the rest of the world for more than 20 years. In 1980, Walesa delivered a speech at an employee strike in Poland that christened Solidarity and led to the social revolution that overtook communism in Poland by 1990. Walesa's speech evolved into the Gdansk Agreement of 1980, which convinced the Polish government to grant employees the right to form unions and to organize worker strikes. Time, The Financial Times, The London Observer and several other European publications have named Walesa "Man of the Year" for his efforts.

After much struggle and years of underground leadership by Walesa, Solidarity was finally invited to join with the Communist Party to form a coalition government in Poland in 1988. Eventually, Solidarity took over and in 1990 Walesa became the first democratically elected Polish president.

Walesa received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983 and ultimately made Poland a model for economic and political reform for the rest of Europe. He now heads the Lech Walesa Institute, which aims to advance the ideals of democracy and free market reform throughout Eastern Europe and the rest of the world.

SBC Foundation Presents Contribution

Truman received the first $50,000 of a $200,000, four-year donation from the SBC Foundation to establish the SBC Rural Link Program.

Using the grant from the SBC Foundation and monies from the University Foundation and rural districts, Truman will offer scholarships and technology training to a selected group of first-year MAE graduate students. In return, these students will complete one-year internships in the rural districts that have helped sponsor their education and will agree to accept employment in these same districts for the first two years of their professional teaching careers.

SBC Rural Link interns will bring comprehensive technology packages, such as laptop computers, color scanners, digital cameras, zip drives, and software, with them into the school districts.

Intern-led classrooms will be connected with the University via two-way audio/visual distance learning stations, providing undergraduate students the opportunity to observe day-to-day teaching and learning activities and discuss and analyze teaching techniques.

John Hoffmann, associate professor of education, and Kay Clapp, professor of education, were instrumental in writing the proposal to SBC with the assistance of Judy Lundberg, grants and foundation relations.

Dr. Sam Minner, head of the Education Division, will serve as project director.

Washington Center Internships Offer Variety of Jobs

Truman students interested in spending a spring semester in Washington D.C. are given that opportunity through the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars (TWC). The annual program awards up to five Truman participants 15 credit hours for their internship work and an independent study project.

TWC has opportunities for all majors. Any students with at least a 3.25 GPA with an interest in the program should contact Julia DeLancey, assistant professor of art, at 785.4430 or delancey@truman.edu. She is now taking applications for the spring 2003 semester.

Students taking advantage of the 2002 internships are Angela Ernst, senior history major; Justinas Juknys, junior political science major; Tim Papuga, senior business administration major, Megan Pittman, sophomore political science major; and Sarah Stanley, junior communication and pre-education elementary double major.

Four Truman students completed TWC internships and independent study work during the spring 2001 semester. Emily Hagemann, senior communication major, interned at the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press; Matt Gorton, senior biology major, worked with the Department of the Interior in the Office of Surface Mining; Ross Martin, spring 2001 graduate, interned at the Canadian Embassy in the Office of Liaison with International Financial Institutions; and Stacy Wright, senior communication major, had a television internship with Berenson Productions.

Students Sell Raffle Tickets for Fund Drive

Truman State University students hope to reach their goal of $6,000 for the United Way campus fund drive. Their primary fund raising activity is the annual Campus Food Fast at dinner Oct. 25. Students living in the residence halls volunteer to not eat their university meal on this evening and Sodexo donates the unused meal fees to the United Way student drive. This year's student co-chairs are Matt Gorton and Stacy Wright, and the Food Fast organizer is Kelly Forrester, Centennial Hall director.

The student committee will also be selling chances on an All Campus Raffle, Oct. 22-31. Items donated by area businesses for the student raffle are on display in the Student Union Building display cases, main floor. The list of items is available on the Truman Web site at the News/Events/Calendars Web page at <http://www.truman.edu/newsevents/index.stm> under raffle on the United Way Web site link.

Overall the campus fund drive has attained 70 percent of the $47,500 goal. Group leaders will continue to make contacts with every employee associated with Truman. This gives employees the opportunity to assist residents of Adair and surrounding counties who benefit from United Way services. Pledges of $104 will receive an entry into the $2,000 Disney Trip Drawing.

Notables

Michael Bird, associate professor of health and exercise sciences, has been selected as one of the Presidential Award recipients for 2001 by the Missouri Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (MAHPERD) for his outstanding dedication to the profession. He will be officially recognized at the MAHPERD awards banquet Nov. 17, at the Lodge of the Four Seasons, Lake Ozark, Mo.

Gregory Jones, associate professor of music, has been asked to serve on the Fulbright Review and Selection Panel for Eastern Europe, Greece and Turkey. Jones will travel to Washington, D.C., in November where he will join faculty members from around the country in awarding Fulbright Senior Awards in all disciplines. The Fulbright Program is the government's flagship exchange activity and is administrated by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars and the United States Department of State. Jones is also a former Fulbright recipient having been awarded an Artist-in-Residence award to Greece in 1995.

Emmanuel Nnadozie, McNair Program director and associate professor of economics, has been invited by the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa to participate in the Africa Knowledge Networks Forum as part of the Technical Advisory Committee.

Terrance Gabel, assistant professor of business administration, presented a paper titled "An Exploratory Examination of Distracted Driving as Consumption" at the 2001 Association for Consumer Research conference Oct. 13 in Austin, Texas. Nick Schandler, senior accounting and business administration double major from Florissant, Mo., co-authored the paper with Gabel. The paper will also soon be published in the forthcoming Advances in Consumer Research. The Truman Forensics Team won the Nebraska Double-Up Tournament co-hosted by Creighton University and Concordia University Oct. 12-15, on the Creighton University campus in Omaha, Neb. Truman won the tournament debate sweepstakes championship, representing the cumulative impact of all Truman debaters at the tournament. This is the third consecutive year Truman has won the Double-Up. More than 25 colleges and universities were represented at the tournament.

John Applegate, professor and director of communication disorders, received official notice from the Council on Academic Accreditation (CAA) of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) that the master's program in communication disorders at Truman has been re-accredited for an eight-year period beginning Aug. 1, 2001, through July 21, 2009. The Truman communication disorders master's program has been accredited by the CAA of the ASHA since 1970.

Taner Edis, assistant professor of physics, will give an invited talk, "A World Designed by God: Science and Creationism in Contemporary Islam," in the Center for the Inquiry International Conference on "Science and Religion," Nov. 11, in Atlanta, Ga. For details of the talk, visit <http://www.csicop.org>.

Stephen and Mariquit (Kit) Hadwiger, both assistant professors of nursing, attended the MONA 80th Biennial Convention Nursing 2001 The Best is Yet to Come: Caring for Our Practice, Ourselves and Others Oct. 11-14 in Branson, Mo.

Xiaotian Chen, reference/electronic resources librarian, will present "The Competition Between Free Internet Search Services and Library Resources" at the regional library symposium, Brick and Click Libraries: How Do We Support Both, Oct. 26 in Maryville, Mo.

2001 New Music Festival to be Held

The Truman State University Division of Fine Arts, the Upsilon Phi chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, and the Epsilon Pi chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will host the 2001 New Music Festival Oct. 25-26.

The festival will feature guest composer, Dr. Paul Richards, a music professor at the University of Florida. He was the winner of the 2000 Truman State Composition Competition. Richards will talk about his new work "Typhon's Brood," which was commissioned for Truman's Wind Symphony. The Wind Symphony will perform this piece under the direction of Dan Peterson during the festival at the first of two festival concerts at 7:30, Oct. 25, in Baldwin Auditorium. The concert will also include performances by Cantoria, Chamber Choir, Orchestra, Brass Choir and the President's Quartet.

The second concert will start at 1:30 p.m., Oct. 26, in the SUB Activities Room and will feature recent vocal, keyboard, woodwind and percussion music performed by faculty musicians. Admission is free.

The Public Relations Office is now accepting resumés for the spring 2002 internship position.

Interns receive course credit and valuable experience in desktop publishing and public relations office duties.

Interested students should stop by the Public Relations office, McClain 102, call 785.4016 or email Katie Svoboda at ksvoboda@truman.edu, no later than Nov. 8.
