Women's Swim Team Wins Second Consecutive National Championship

The women's swimming and diving team members brought home the 2002 Division II title for the second consecutive year. This marks the second time in Truman's history a team has won a Division II national championship.

Women's swim team coach Seth

Huston was awarded National Coach of the Year and Diana Betsworth was named Swimmer of the Meet. The team competed for four days.

They outscored the Drury team by 185 points to win the title.

Members of the swim team were recognized by President Jack Magruder and Kirksville Mayor Bill Murray recently. Murray presented the team with a city proclamation to recognize the success of the team and the honor they brought to the city.

Minnesota Supreme Court Justice to Speak

The Kohlenberg Lyceum Series will finish the season with a lecture by Minnesota Supreme Court Justice Alan C. Page at 8 p.m., April 6, in Baldwin Auditorium.

Recognized by many as a former stand-out for the Minnesota Vikings, Page is the first African American to serve as a Supreme Court Justice for the Minnesota Court system, a position he has held since 1993.

Page previously served as Minnesota's Assistant Attorney General and as a Special Assistant Attorney General in the Employment Law Division. Prior to that, he served as an associate with Lindquist and Vennum. He received his bachelor of arts in political science from the University of Notre Dame and his juris doctorate from the University of Minnesota Law School.

Page was a National Football League player from 1967-1981. He became the first defensive player in NFL history to receive the "Most Valuable Player" Award (1971) and was the first active NFL player to complete a marathon (1979). Page was inducted into the Football Hall of Fame in 1988, the Nike Walk of Fame in 1990 and the College Football Hall of Fame in 1993.

Tickets for Page's lecture will be available beginning March 28. Free tickets for students, faculty and staff may be picked up with a University ID at the SAB office and the Center for Student Involvement on the lower level of the Student Union Building. Generous support for Page's talk has been provided by the Truman State University Foundation. Truman Bookstore is a platinum level sponsor and a special guest at this performance.

Stokes Scholar Program Designed to Increase Minority Enrollment, Retention

Stokes Scholars, Louis Stokes Missouri Alliance for Minority Participation, is a new program sponsored by the Vice President of Academic Affairs Office and Multicultural Affairs Center with support from the McNair Program and National Science Foundation.

The Louis Stokes Missouri Alliance for Minority Participation at Truman is a multi-disciplinary comprehensive program designed to increase the enrollment and retention of minorities studying life, physical, social and behavioral sciences, mathematics and engineering. It is also designed to increase the number of minority undergraduates earning degrees in these disciplines.

Stokes Scholars will engage in confidence-building and skill-enhancing activities such as student access workshops, presentations on research skills and career preparation seminars. They will be paired with a faculty mentor from their major who will provide academic advising, research experiences, internship supervision and encouragement and support.

Stokes Alliance staff will provide academic, personal and career counseling to the scholars.

In addition, the Stokes Scholars will have the opportunity to participate in a funded two-week pre-research experience program during the interim after their sophomore year and a funded eight-week summer research internship program during the summer following their junior year.

Students eligible for the program must be a United States citizen and from an underrepresented group studying life or physical sciences, mathematics, engineering or social and behavior science approved by the National Science Foundation. They must have formally declared one of the approved majors, attained sophomore status, be enrolled as a full-time student and preferably have at least a 3.0 GPA.

Stokes Scholars program interviews for spring 2002 began in January. For more information about the program, contact the Multicultural Affairs Center at 785.4241.

Organizations Clean Up Adopted Streets

Following the adopt-a-street clean up, organizations warm up in the Student Union Building Spanish Room.
