Truman Welcomes Families to Campus

A variety of activities have been planned for Truman students and their families this weekend as part of the annual Family Day. Faculty, staff and their families also are invited to meet the visiting families and share in the events.

Following tradition, this year's events are designed to provide families with information as well as opportunities for a wide variety of entertainment from the University.

Activities kick off at 10 a.m., Oct. 4, with coffee and doughnuts on the Mall outside the Student Union Building.

The festivities move inside to Baldwin Auditorium at 11 a.m., when Truman's President Barbara Dixon and Student Senate President Michael Shelton will formally welcome families to Truman State University and to Family Day 2003. Shelton is a sophomore English major from Bartlett, Ill.

After the assembly, families are invited to bring blankets and lawn chairs for a picnic-style lunch from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at Red Barn Park. The lunch will provide an opportunity for families to catch up with the details of their student's life. Tickets are $5.50 and must be purchased in advance. Students with a purchased meal plan are free with their Truman ID.

The University Art Gallery will be open from noon until 4 p.m. The new exhibit, "Traditional Textiles of Indochina," displays contemporary work in traditional forms.

Sporting events begin at 2 p.m. when the football team challenges Emporia State (Kan.) at Stokes Stadium. Tickets can be purchased Oct. 4 at Reception on the Mall. The volleyball team takes on Rockhurst (Mo.) at 3 p.m. in Pershing Arena. Admission is free.

Entertainment continues through the evening as illusionists, Garry and Kelsey Carson take the stage at 8 p.m. in Baldwin Auditorium. Sponsored by the Student Activities Board, the event is free for students with a Truman ID and tickets will be available before the performance for $2.

The University Wind Symphony and the University Symphony Orchestra will perform at 2 p.m., Oct. 5, in Baldwin Auditorium. Admission to the concert is free.

Kohlenberg Lyceum Series Begins with Polish Philharmonic

The 2003-2004 Kohlenberg Lyceum Series will kick off the season with the performance of the Polish Philharmonic Resovia at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 8, in Baldwin Auditorium.

The Polish Philharmonic, formed in 1955, is well known not only for their regular concert appearances in the impressive Philharmonic Hall in Resovia, but for their performances of Polish and world-class composers and for appearances at Music Festivals both in Poland and outside of the country. The Polish Philharmonic performs under the direction of Tadeusz Wojciechowski. Leopold Godowsky III will join the orchestra as a special guest pianist for this evening of music. He is the nephew of George Gershwin and grandson of the legendary pianist/composer Leopold Godowsky.

Free tickets to the Polish Philharmonic will be available to students, faculty and staff beginning Oct. 1 with a University ID at the Student Activities Board Office and the Center for Student Involvement, lower level of the SUB.

"Traditional Textiles of Indochina" Art Fxhibit Now Open

The University Art
Gallery at Truman presents a new exhibit, "Traditional Textiles of Indochina," displaying contemporary work in traditional forms until Oct. 24.

The show is curated by Sara Orel, professor of art history. The exhibit will examine clothing in Indochina and the function it serves in society, traditional textiles manufactured specifically for foreigners, and the method used to produce traditional textiles.

"It is important to keep in mind that even the traditional is not unchanging in Southeast Asia," Orel said.

The University Art Gallery is located on the ground floor of the Ophelia Parrish Fine Arts Complex. Gallery exhibits, talks and most other events are free and open to the public. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday, and noon-4:30 p.m Saturday.

University Art Gallery programs are presented by the Division of Fine Arts and include national, regional and student and faculty exhibits. The gallery also relies on support from numerous other organizations and individuals in the Kirksville community. Financial assistance for this project has been provided by the Missouri Arts Council, a state agency.

Truman Forensic Union Launches New Season with Second Place Finish

Twenty-two members of the Truman ■ Forensic Union launched the 2003-2004 season with a bang at Purdue University, Sept. 19-21, capturing second place in all three divisions of the tournament and 37 individual awards. Twenty-six colleges and universities participated in the inaugural tournament of the midwest's forensics season

Truman captured second place in debate sweepstakes, individual events sweepstakes, and overall tournament sweepstakes. Julie Anderson, junior biology and theatre double major from DeKalb, Ill., took third place in quadrathon, or individual sweepstakes, a measure of a student's overall performance across their four best events. Abigail Swetz, senior history and theatre double major from Endwell, N.Y., placed first in prose interpre-

Truman advanced a strong showing in debate, placing five students in the octafinals of Lincoln Douglas Debate, including Ian Samuel, junior computer science major from Pueblo, Colo.; Marie Tenny, sophomore psychology major from Villa Ridge, Mo.; Keith Schnakenberg, freshman political science major from Buffalo, Mo.; Ryan Walsh, junior philosophy and religion and communication double-major from Cassville, Mo.; and Matt Harms, junior economics major from Galesburg, Ill. Tyson Helder, junior communication and political science double major from Sioux Falls, S.D., advanced to the quarterfinals of the Lincoln-Douglas division and was ranked fourth best speaker in that portion of the tournament. Harms was ranked fifth speaker, Walsh seventh speaker, and Samuel eighth speaker. In parliamentary debate, the teams of Helder and Holly Magdziarz, freshman English major from Springfield, Mo., and Harms and Justin Perkins, sophomore economics major from Holts Summit, Mo., reached octafinals. Walsh was ranked second speaker in the division, while Samuel was fourth and Helder was sixth.

In individual events competition, students dominated the public address sections of the tournament and launched several freshman careers with impressive showings. Anderson placed first in rhetorical criticism. Devine placed second in persuasive speaking and third in rhetorical criticism. Cara Hurst, freshman communication major from Ballwin, Mo., placed second in novice prose interpretation. Staci Imes, junior communication disorders and Spanish double major from Gering, Neb., placed second in rhetorical criticism and third in informative speaking. Schnakenberg placed second in novice impromptu speaking. Elizabeth Hobbs, sophomore physics major from Newton, Kan., placed third in persuasive speaking.

Acclaimed Technology Activist to Speak

Richard Stallman, the award-winning and controversial founder of the free software movement, will give a lecture at 4 p.m., Oct. 3, in Violette Hall 1000. His talk will focus on the free software movement and the significance of the GNU/Linux operating system. Stallman will discuss the social, ethical, legal and economic issues surrounding free and proprietary software and the corporate and governmental attempts to control the way you use your computer. The lecture is free and the public is invited to attend.

In 1971, Stallman began his academic career at MIT's famed Artificial Intelligence Laboratory. There he and many other programmers used free software, creating and sharing code openly. By the early 1980s, the group had disbanded and most software had become proprietary. Cooperation and sharing in software development was forgotten. In 1983, Stallman founded the GNU Project as a way of bringing back the cooperative spirit that prevailed in the computing community in earlier days. The project's goal was to make cooperation possible once again by removing the legal and social obstacles to cooperation imposed by the owners of proprietary software.

Stallman is the principal author of the GNU C compiler, the GNU symbolic debugger (gdb), GNU Emacs, and many other programs. Stallman has received two honorary doctorates and many other awards and accolades.

The lecture is the keynote event for the Free Software Week being sponsored by the three campus computer science student organizations, ACM, TSLUG and TWICS. Support for the lecture is provided by FAC and the NSF-funded Support for Mathematics and Computer Science scholarship program. For more information, contact Jon Beck at jbeck@truman.edu or Heidi Hinrichsen at c1238@truman.edu.

Banner ID Required to Order Books

Truman continues to be an active member of the growing consortium of academic libraries in Missouri. With just a few clicks in the MOBIUS online database, Truman students, faculty and staff have access to the combined resources of its more than 60 member libraries with more than 17 million volumes.

Last year the Truman community borrowed 9,147 books from MOBIUS libraries. A change this year for Truman is that ordering books requires the use of the new Banner ID number, rather than the University bar code that was formerly used. Everyone checking their library account, renewing materials, or ordering books through MOBIUS must now use the nine-digit Banner number (with leading zeros). For an example, check out http://library.truman.edu/images/universityidmobius.htm.
