Educator of the Year Committee Selects Six Finalists

Seventeen professors were nominated by their students to be the 2004 Educator of the Year. They were then asked to submit an essay, given a prompt, and a sample syllabus from which the committee selected the 12 semifinalists. At that point, the semifinalists' students were surveyed.

The finalists are: Jon Beck, assistant professor of computer science; Joseph Benevento, professor of English; John Ishiyama, professor of political science; Wendy Miner, assistant professor of education; Russell Nelson, associate professor of art; and Sally West, associate professor of history.

In the coming weeks, the committee will observe the finalists' classes and select the Educator of the Year. The winner will be announced at a banquet at 6 p.m., April 14, in the SUB Georgian Room. All of the nominees will be honored at this time.

The committee is comprised of representatives from the sponsoring organizations: Student Senate, Pershing Society, Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi.

Students to Present Research, Scholarship and Creative Achievement at Annual Conference

Truman will hold its 17th annual Student Research Conference April 6, and it will feature a broad spectrum of presentations from all degree-granting academic divisions. Scheduled classes will not formally meet during the day of the Conference, thereby providing the opportunity for all students and faculty to attend and fully participate.

The day will be a University-wide Celebration of Student Research, Scholarship, and Creative Achievement, with 254 presentations delivered by 325 undergraduate and graduate student authors, supervised by 148 faculty mentors. Students will be presenting their scholarly work in a range of presentation types, including oral papers, posters, performing arts, studio arts, and technology displays. The Conference will include a plenary address delivered by Truman's President, Barbara Dixon, and four informal, roundtable discussion sessions during the lunch break. To further encourage dialogue among all members of the University community, several Conference-wide refreshment breaks and a reception are included in the program.

The full Conference program and all abstracts can be electronically browsed and extensively searched on the Conference Web site at http://src.truman.edu. Beginning this year, student authors will have the opportunity to upload relevant files to accompany their online abstracts. For example, students may choose to post the transcript of their oral paper, an important photograph, or a copy of their PowerPoint presentation.

Division of Fine Arts Presents Visiting Guest Artist, Musical Comedy

Truman State University's Division of Fine Arts has two upcoming events.

Visiting Guest Artist Elizabeth Holowell, professor of violin at the Newcastle Conservatory of Music in Newcastle, Australia, will present a violin recital at 8 p.m., April 8, in the Ophelia Parrish Performance Hall. She will perform works by Mozart, Poulenc, Franck and others. She will be accompanied by Shannon McGinnis, assistant professor of music, on the piano; Janice Saffir, professor of music, on piano; and Sam McClure, associate professor of music, on the viola.

The recital is free and open to the public. The Division of Fine Arts also presents the musical "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," written by Rupert Holmes and directed by Dana Smith. The production will be at 8 p.m., April 13-17, in the Ophelia Parrish Courtyard Theatre.

Set in London in 1892, this play-within-aplay focuses on members of a Victorian acting troupe, as they put on a hilarious rendition of Charles Dickens' unfinished novel.

One stormy night the title character disappears. Has he been murdered? This interactive musical comedy lets the audience determine the outcome of the show, as they vote to decide who killed Edwin Drood.

Tickets are $5 and may be purchased in advance or placed on reserve at the Box Office in Ophelia Parrish. The OP Box Office is open from 10 a.m.-3:30 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and from 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday.

For more information about this musical, call the OP Box Office at 785.4515.

Center Recycles Materials to Reduce Waste

Wondering what to do with your empty aluminum cans and used paper? Recycle them.

Recycle bins are available to the University community in all buildings on campus. These bins help the Recycling Center with its goal to reduce solid waste quantities as much as possible. In addition, the Recycling Center has a drop-off pad which allows members of the community to drop off recyclables when the Recycling Center is closed.

The University began its recycling program in October 2001 and purchased a cardboard baler to use in its center. The University recycles 1,000 pounds of cardboard each day with the baler. Cardboard material bins are located outside of most buildings.

Truman's Recycling Center is located in Building No. 4 in the Dulaney/Baldwin Complex at the south end of campus.

For more information about recycling at Truman or to volunteer, contact Howard Worcester, recycle coordinator, at 785.7672.

Debaters Triumphant at Truman's First Bulldog Free Invitational

Four Truman parliamentary debate teams and two Lincoln-Douglas debaters reached elimination rounds at the Bulldog Free Invitational Debate Tournament, March 27-28 on the Truman campus, capturing top-honors for overall performance across the two debate divisions offered. This will be an annual event.

Ian Samuel, junior computer science major from Pueblo, Colo., and Marie Tenny, junior psychology major from Villa Ridge, Mo., reached the final round in parliamentary debate where they lost a difficult round to season-long rivals from the University of South Carolina. Samuel won the Lincoln-Douglas debate division earlier in the day. Tenny met Samuel in the quarterfinals of the Lincoln-Douglas tournament and Samuel advanced with the higher preliminary round record.

The parliamentary debate team of Matthew Harms, junior economics major from Galesburg, Ill., and Justin Perkins, sophomore economics major from Jefferson City, Mo., reached the semifinal round of the tournament before being defeated by the same University of South Carolina team that eventually won. Tyson Helder, junior political science and communication double major from Sioux Falls, S.D., and Holly Magdziarz, freshman English major from Springfield, Mo., reached quarterfinals. The team of Ryan Walsh, junior philosophy and religion and communication double major from Cassville, Mo., and Ben Holley, sophomore communication major from Neosho, Mo., reached the tournament's octafinal round.

John James Quinn, associate professor of political science, presented a paper titled "The Effects of Majority State Ownership of Industry or Mining on Corruption: A Cross-regional Comparison" at a conference organized by the Centre for the Study of African Economies (CSAE) at St. Catherine's College, Oxford University. Antonio Scuderi, associate professor of Italian, reviewed Monsters in the Italian Literary Imagination (Wayne State UP, 2001) for the Modern Language Review, the journal of Modern Humanities Research Association of Great Britain.

Summer Student Workers Available Without Cost to Divisions/Offices

Have a backlog of projects that need to be completed? Always behind and needing extra help in your office or lab? Limited by budget restraints? Interested in mentoring a college-bound high school student on a short-term basis?

Again this summer, Upward Bound (UB) expects to place approximately 30 students in paid internships on campus related to their career interests. This initiative is made available through Department of Education funds designated to enhance opportunities for career development and professional mentorship. The Career Internship Program (CIP) will benefit not only the college-bound project participants but also the divisions and offices by providing approximately 30 hours of free labor to them. Student interns typically provide work for the career mentor/job supervisor from 1:30-4:30 p.m. on selected afternoons in June and July. Outside of those times, the intern will research a career related to the internship placement and receive 30 hours of classroom instruction (provided by UB) in which employability and job-related skills and attitudes will be discussed, practiced and evaluated.

Professors and campus offices/divisions interested in receiving more information about an intern should contact Upward Bound at 785.4244 or ubub@truman.edu by April 16. If all student interns are not needed on campus by April 16, then the freegratis workers will be offered to the Kirksville community.

Scholarship Opportunities Available

Two scholarship opportunities are currently available for students.

The Missouri Waste Control Coalition is offering its Environmental Scholarship for students who have an interest in or are focusing on classes in the environmental studies field. They will be awarding one $500 scholarship. The applicant must have a minimum GPA of 2.7 and must be attending or planning on attending school full-time. For more information, stop by the Financial Aid Office.

The Business and Professional Women's Foundation is accepting applications from disadvantaged women seeking to further their education for their Career Advancement Scholarship Program. Additional information regarding this scholarship may be obtained at http://www.bpwusa.org under "BPW Foundation."

The application deadline for both of these scholarships is April 15.

Sodexho Annual Food Drive

April 5-8

Any nonperishable food items may be placed in the shopping carts located in each dining hall or in Mainstreet Market.

Students may also donate meals from their meal plans to purchase items that Sodexho has on display.

Students Present Research at State Capitol

Twenty-four students presented posters about their research at the Missouri State Capitol in Jefferson City recently.

Rethinking Retention Teleconference

noon - 2 p.m. April 8 SUB Activities Room You're invited to bring your own lunch. Beverages will be provided.

With demands for accountability increasing, retention remains the focal point of many campus discussions. This teleconference provides an opportunity to ignite a campuswide conversation on this important topic. The broadcast will begin by exploring the importance of addressing this goal, facing our challenges, and reframing the discussion in an effort to find workable solutions. Participants will also be introduced to some institutional and instructional strategies that are helping colleges and universities get a handle on this central concern.
