Author, Educator to Visit Truman Campus

Catharine R. Stimpson, dean of the graduate school of arts and sciences and a professor at New York University, will begin her public visit as the next guest of the 2001-2002 Distinguished Visiting Scholar Program with a lecture titled "Genius: Evil and Otherwise" at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 4, in Violette Hall 1000. For a complete listing of Stimpson's scheduled visit, refer to the sidebar on page 2.

Stimpson has been working as a professor and writer in the field of humanities and women's studies for more than 20 years. She was the founding editor of "Signs: Journal of Women in Culture and Society." Since her first book was published in 1979, Stimpson has edited seven books and has had more than 150 monographs, essays, stories and reviews about culture and women's studies printed in publications such as The New York Times Book Review.

Stimpson graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor's degree in English from Bryn Mawr College; she earned her master's degree at Cambridge University and her doctoral degree with distinction from Columbia University. She holds 12 honorary doctorates and during her career has served on several boards and committees, such as the National Council for Research on Women, the MS Magazine Board of Scholars and the New York State Council for the Humanities. She now serves as the president of the Association of Graduate Schools and as the chair of the National Advisory Committee of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

Stimpson currently has a book on Gertrude Stein under contract with the University of Chicago Press and continues to work as an editor and an educator at NYU.

Faculty/Staff Campaign Begins This Week

The 2002 Faculty/Staff Campaign will be led by Doug Daubert, director of the Student Union, and Jeffrey Gall, assistant professor of history and social science education. The campaign will run through February.

This week, coordinators from different areas will be contacting full- and part-time faculty and staff to ask for support of the Truman State University Foundation.

Through the Foundation, private gifts from faculty and staff help fund a wide variety of causes such as academic scholarships, study abroad programs, faculty development and research. Additional support for each of the academic divisions, cultural programs such as the Kohlenberg Lyceum Series and a variety of athletic programs are also included in the Foundation's funding. In addition, this year faculty and staff can contribute to the Magruder Hall Campaign, Truman's first national, institution-wide campaign. Contributions will meet the immediate need of renovating and expanding the science facilities and provide the best technology, laboratories, research facilities and learning environment for Truman students.

The goal of this year's campaign is to further increase the faculty and staff participation rate. The last campaign's participation rate was 73 percent, the highest rate among Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges (COPLAC), according to the COPLAC Cooperative Data Collection and Performance Indicators for 1999-2000.

For more information, contact Laura Cook, manager of the Annual Fund, at 785.4688. Campaign updates will be included in future *Truman Today*s.

Palmer to Present Baldwin Lecture

Parker J. Palmer, a writer, teacher and activist, will visit Truman State University Feb. 7-8 as the 2002 Baldwin Lecturer. His discussion sessions "Teaching is Not a Lost Art: Renewing the University's Commitment to its Teaching and Learning Mission" will be from 3:30-5:30 p.m., Feb. 7, and from 10:30 a.m.-noon, Feb. 8, in the Student Union Building Alumni Room. His lecture "The Courage to Teach: Reforming Education From the Inside Out" will be at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 8, in VH 1000. A reception will follow in the Violette Hall Commons.

Palmer works independently on issues in education, community, leadership, spirituality and social change. His work spans a wide range of institutions including colleges and universities, public schools, community organizations, churches and retreat centers, corporations and foundations. He serves as senior associate of the American Association for Higher Education and as senior adviser to the Fetzer Institute.

Palmer is frequently cited as a master teacher. His work has been featured by The New York Times, The Chronicle of Higher Education, Change Magazine, The Christian Century, CBS-TV News, National Public Radio and The Voice of America. The Danforth Foundation, the Lilly Endowment and the Fetzer Institute have all supported his work with major grants.

His book, "The Courage to Teach: Exploring the Inner Landscape of a Teacher's Life," was published in 1997.

In 1998, The Leadership Project, a national survey of 11,000 faculty and administrators, named Palmer as one of the 30 "most influential senior leaders" in higher education and one of the 10 key "agenda-setters" of the past decade.

Change Magazine, Jan/Feb 1998, described Palmer as a scholar who "...inspired a generation of teachers and reformers with evocative visions of community, knowing, and spiritual wholeness."

The 2002 Baldwin Lecturer is sponsored by Faculty Development, the Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Residential College Program and the Frances Laughlin Fuller Lectureship Fund from the Advancement Office.

For more information, visit <http://www2.truman.edu/facdev/Baldwin.html>, call the Faculty Development Office at 785.4391, or e-mail facdev@truman.edu.

Forum on U.S. Highway 63 Scheduled Feb. 7

On April 2, Truman students, faculty and staff will have the opportunity to vote on a proposal that would expand U.S. Highway 63 to four lanes from Kirksville to Macon. In an effort to inform faculty, staff and students about this issue, Students for 63 Now will have an informational forum at 7 p.m., Feb. 7, in the Student Union Building Down Under.

David Clithero, chair of the Highway 63 Transportation Corporation, will discuss the highway expansion proposal at the forum. The proposal would involve a half-cent sales tax. This tax would be the same as the Aquatic Center tax that was removed April 2001 and would have a sunset clause of 10 years.

This project involves a 23-mile stretch of highway, starting at the end of the proposed Macon bypass at Route DD and ending at the proposed start of the Kirksville bypass at Millard.

For more information about the forum, contact Bethany Ordaz at 665.2007.

Romine Receives Outstanding Educator Award

The Missouri Society of CPAs (MSCPA) has named Jeff Romine, professor of accounting and coordinator of the master of accountancy program, the 2002 Outstanding Educator Award Recipient.

Romine serves as MSCPA's LEAP (Lead and Enhance the Accounting Profession) Task Force Chairperson and is a member of the society's nominating committee. He has also served as president of the Missouri Association of Accounting Educators and held various leadership positions in the American Institute of CPAs, the American Accounting Association and the Institute of Internal Auditors.

Notables

Monica Barron, associate professor of English, will have her poem "An Anniversary of My Father's Death" published in Briar Cliff Review this spring.

Adam Brooke Davis, associate professor of English, recently had several review essays published in the Missouri Folklore Society Journal XXII (2000): "Following Culture: Folklore in the Discourse of American Culture;" "International Folkloristics: Contributions by the Founders of Folklore;" "The Dynamics of Folklore;" and "Usable Pasts: Traditions and Group Expressions in North America."

John Ishiyama, associate professor of political science, had his article "Women's Parties in Post Communist Politics" accepted for publication in the journal East European Politics and Societies. It will appear in volume 16(3) this year.

Sarah Yancey, junior communication and psychology double major from Sorento, Ill., was awarded a Phi Kappa Phi Internship Support Grant. She will use the grant to pursue an advertising internship in Kansas City, Mo., or St. Louis.

Twelve Truman Forensics Program competitors captured the Tournament

Sweepstakes Championship at the Cornhusker Invitational Forensics Tournament, part of the "Goodlife Swing," a weekend of joint forensics competition hosted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the University of Nebraska-Omaha, Jan. 4-6. Forensics competitions are a combined effort by both individual events competitors and debaters. Along with the tournament championship at the UNL half of the tournament, the competitors earned the first-place overall finish in debate sweepstakes, and a third place overall ranking when the scores of the date tournament and two separate individual events tournaments were combined. The Truman Forensics Program captured the overall sweepstakes championship, the debate sweepstakes championship and second place in individual events sweepstakes, Jan. 19, at Concordia University in Seward, Neb. Among the other institutions represented were Creighton University, Grinnell College, Kansas State University, Rice University, Central Missouri State University and three branches of the University of Nebraska system. Four Truman teams placed in the parliamentary debate elimination rounds, more than any other program. This brings Truman's total number of awards for the year to 248.
