Hercules Gift to Benefit Truman Accounting Program

Duane Hercules, a 1982 graduate of Truman State University, and his wife Joy have made a $30,000 commitment to the “Bright Minds Bright Futures” campaign designed to benefit the accounting program in the School of Business.

The Duane and Joy Hercules Family Accounting Fund will award two $2,500 scholarships each year to accounting students from St. Louis or St. Charles Counties.

In addition, the fund will produce a $1,000 faculty award to an accounting faculty member based upon excellence to the profession, service to students and a positive impact on the Truman campus. The faculty award will be selected by the dean of the School of Business.

A native of St. Charles County, Duane Hercules earned an accounting degree from Truman in 1982. He started his accounting career with Coopers and Lybrand, and earned a C.P.A. designation during that time.

In 1984, Hercules joined Safety National Casualty Corporation and currently serves as the firm’s executive vice president of business development, chief financial officer and treasurer.

He is a shareholder of the corporation and helped guide its merger with the New York Stock Exchange-traded Delphi Financial Group in 1996.

Safety National is a subsidiary of Delphi, a $6 billion insurance holding company. The firm is a leading provider of innovative integrated employee benefit products and employee absence management programs designed to enhance employee productivity.

The Bright Minds Bright Futures campaign continues to progress during the advance gifts phase, with $8.1 million in cash, multi-year pledges and new planned gift commitments since its launch in July 2006.

Sixth Annual Technology Fair to Take Place During University Conference

The Teaching Learning Technology Roundtable’s (TLTR) Sixth Annual Technology Fair will be taking place from 1:30-5 p.m. Feb. 20 in the SUB Activities Room, the afternoon of University Conference.

The Fair will showcase both exciting ways that technology can facilitate the educational process as well as other innovative ways that technology is being used at Truman. The projects that will be displayed include, among others, a look at Truman’s new online co-curricular record system for students, a tour of Truman’s Portfolio Project online submission site, the steps involved in creating “print-on-demand” books to disseminate student/faculty scholarship, plans for a Web site to consolidate listings of films showing on campus each month, Truman’s Speech and Hearing Clinic’s efforts at providing services remotely to Northeast Missouri via a telehealth network, the latest and greatest from Instructional Design Services and Truman’s instructional designer, Diane Richmond, how Pickler Memorial Library’s tech resources can benefit you, ongoing activities of Truman’s Mac User Group and Free Software Club of Kirksville, and a look at a laptop from the “One Laptop Per Child” initiative for children in developing countries.

The prizes for the TruTech Challenge will be awarded in a ceremony at about 4:30 p.m.

Sungard/ITS will be sponsoring a free dessert table at the Fair until 4:30 p.m. After that time, the Tech Fair will take place in conjunction with the University Conference’s social hour.

For questions about the Tech Fair, please contact Chad Mohler at chmohler@truman.edu.

Spring Career Expo and Mock Interviews Scheduled

The Career Expo is drawing near and below are a few things that students need to know.

Feb. 22

The Career Center will host the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) mock interviews. There are still several open slots and students may sign-up now in person in the Career Center. In order to interview, students must dress professionally and turn their résumé in 24 hours before the interview.

Feb. 25

The Career Center will be hosting Expo 411 from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. in the Violette Hall Commons. Students will be able to have their résumé critiqued, find out about how to make the most of their Expo experience, and enjoy popcorn, soda and music.

Speaker Joe Mayne will present a program titled "Establishing Your Personal Brand" at 7 p.m. in the SUB Georgian Room. This event is sponsored by Delta Sigma Pi, Alpha Kappa Psi, Beta Alpha Psi, Phi Beta Lambda, SIFE, National Association of Black Accountants and The American Marketing Association.

Feb. 26

The Career Center and Delta Sigma Pi are co-sponsoring two Map Out Your Future events. First, Lauren Monks of Edward Jones presents "Backpack to Briefcase" in the SUB Activities Room. Second, Ted Theobald of Eli Lilly presents "How to Approach a Recruiter/Networking" at 6 p.m. in the SUB Activities Room.

Feb. 27

The Career Expo takes place from 1-5 p.m. in the Student Union Building. Students can pre-register for Expo at <http://career.truman.edu/CareerExpo/>. The interview day for those who have pre-applied will be Feb. 28. Many companies will still sign up students to interview Feb. 28 after meeting them at Career Expo.

Students are welcome to stop by the Career Center or call 785.4353 if they have any questions. Students can have their résumé and cover letter critiqued on a drop-in basis by any of the career assistants at the Career Center during the Career Center's open business hours without an appointment.

Truman Forensics Takes Third at Debate Tournament at the Air Force Academy

Members of the Truman Forensic Union ranked third in debate sweepstakes and earned several other honors Feb. 8-10 at the 47th Annual USAFA Classic Speech and Debate Tournament at the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. Truman topped the performances of several prominent debate programs, including Rice University, Texas Tech University, Colorado College, the University of Wyoming, and the Air Force Academy to take home a coveted ceramic falcon award.

Barbara Gillard, a freshman political science major from Jackson, Mo., dominated the junior division of Lincoln-Douglas debate, going undefeated throughout the tournament. Her 6-0 preliminary round record was capped by a final round defeat of a debater from the Air Force Academy. This marks the second tournament in a row in which Gillard has won the Junior Lincoln-Douglas Division. She was also ranked third speaker in her division.

In parliamentary debate competition, open competitors Mark Buchheit, a sophomore history major from Carthage, Mo., and Dylan Rothermel, a senior economics major from Homewood, Ill., reached the octafinal round ("sweet 16") of the tournament before losing to a team from Western Kentucky University that would later reach semifinals. Sarah Backhaus, a freshman political science major from Liberty, Mo., was ranked 11th speaker in the division.

In the junior parliamentary division, Gillard and her "hybrid" partner from Metropolitan Community College-Longview, Calvin Anderson, reached the semifinals. Anderson was also seventh speaker in the division. He will be enrolling at Truman in the fall. Gillard and Anderson's partnership was part of an ongoing effort to encourage collaboration, and eventual transfers, from the Metropolitan Community Colleges' only forensics program to Truman.

Truman Forensics is a co-curricular program of the Department of Communication. Students interested in participating can contact Kevin Minch, director of forensics, at 785.5677 or kminch@truman.edu.

Kirksville Chapter of Sigma Xi Donates Books to Adair County R-II School in Brashear

Following its donation of a book series titled "Women's Adventures in Science" to the Adair County Public Library this past summer and to the Kirksville Middle School library on Oct. 17, 2007, the Kirksville Chapter of Sigma Xi donated a third set to the Adair County R-II School in Brashear on Feb. 11. The money for the purchase of these books was donated by Sigma Xi members.

There are 10 books in the series, sponsored by the National Academies of Science, each of which focuses on the life and career of a particular woman scientist. Careers described in the books include: planetary astronomy, forensic anthropology, sociology, wildlife biology, climate science, neuropsychology, biomechanics, robot design, planetary geology, and physics. The books are most appropriate for middle school students.

Sigma Xi is the national Scientific Research Society, and Kirksville Sigma Xi includes faculty, staff and student members from the research communities at both Truman State University and the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine at A.T. Still University. In addition to sponsoring one public lecture each spring, Kirksville Sigma Xi members participate in various community outreach projects from giving talks or tours of their research labs to local school classes to providing judges for science-related competitions. Most recently, Sigma Xi members participated in judging the regional Design and Build Competition for Middle School and

High School projects. In addition, Kirksville Sigma Xi makes an annual award of Teacher of the Year for outstanding math and science teachers in area schools.

More information about Kirksville Sigma Xi, recent award winners, and contact information is available online at <http://sigmaxi.truman.edu>.

NOTABLES

The Truman Academic Competition Organization went to a sectionals tournament Feb. 9 in Tulsa, Okla., that qualifies teams for competition at a national tournament. Truman A went 13-0, winning the tournament handily and qualifying for a national tournament that will take place April 11-12 at Washington University in St. Louis. Other than having the A team qualify for nationals, Truman team members did very well individually. There were three scorers in the top five:

Kent Buxton, a junior biology major from Cape Girardeau, Mo., second overall; Christopher Stone, a junior linguistics major from Springfield, Ill., fourth overall; and Ryan Stander, a sophomore history and political science double major from Liberty, Mo., fifth overall. In the next top five, Truman had two other individuals: Ali Pearson, a senior psychology major from Pacific, Mo., seventh overall; and Tyson Koenig, a sophomore history major from Perryville, Mo., 10th overall. There were more than 40 people at the event representing 11 schools, including Missouri

University of Science and Technology, Kansas State University, the University of Oklahoma, Oklahoma State University and Harding University.

Wolfgang Hoeschele, associate professor of geography, has an article titled "Research Agenda for a Green Economics of Abundance" published in the International Journal of Green Economics Vol. 2, No. 1, 2008 in which he outlines the ideas which are detailed in a forthcoming book.

Amber Johnson, associate professor of anthropology, has a chapter titled "A Method for Anticipating Patterns in Archaeological Sequences" in "Archaeology Without Borders: Contact, Commerce, and Change in the U.S. Southwest and Northwestern Mexico," edited by L.D. Webster & M.E. McBrinn (University Press of Colorado, 2008).

"Tribe, Race, History: Native Americans in Southern New England, 1780-1880," by Daniel Mandell, associate professor of history, has been published by Johns Hopkins University Press.

Professional Development Institute Inaugural Class set to Start Fall 2008

The smooth transition to a successful life after college requires more than academic skills. Topics that might arise during this life changing time range from business etiquette, repaying student loans and negotiating benefits packages to identity theft, car insurance and work-life balance. No matter what a student's future career is, he/she will be faced with many unforeseen challenges. The Professional Development Institute (PDI), a highly selective program developed and coordinated by Polly Matteson, Career Center career coordinator, is a collaborative effort to help students prepare for their after college experience. Employers nationwide have commented that these life skills are where all college students are most unprepared.

The PDI consists of workshops, guest speakers, and innovative activities on highly varied topics. Students who demonstrate a desire to grow professionally, have leadership potential and a motivation to participate in the program are strong candidates for selection. Successful completion of the two-year program will be notated on the co-curricular transcript. Matteson said she feels strongly that employers will recognize and appreciate the value of this program when recruiting Truman students.

All sophomores have an opportunity to apply for admission to PDI with the application deadline set for March 15. Check the Professional Development Institute Web site at <http://pdi.truman.edu> for a more in-depth description of the program and the application process. If you have further questions, contact Matteson at pollym@truman.edu.

SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Applications are available in the Truman State University Financial Aid Office for the J. R. Popalisky Scholarship Fund of the Missouri Section of the American Water Works Association. This $1,000 scholarship opportunity is available to civil or environmental engineering or environmental science students whom have an emphasis in career fields associated with water supply. Deadline for submittal of this application is March 21. The Voluntary Service Organization at Columbia Regional Hospital each year gives scholarship assistance to a number of students. To be considered for a scholarship, students must be able to verify that they have been accepted into an accredited clinical or professional health care program leading to a state licensed examination. A 2.89 or better GPA is required to be considered for the scholarship. Students are not required to be currently employed by or seeking employment at Columbia Regional Hospital after graduation. For further information regarding this scholarship, stop by the Financial Aid Office in McClain Hall 103. Information must be received by the scholarship committee by noon April 14.

Foundation Scholarship Applications for 2008-2009 Available Online

More than $550,000 in scholarships will be awarded from the Truman State University Foundation this year. These scholarships are made possible through generous contributions from alumni, parents and friends of the University.

Applications for the majority of the 2008-2009 Foundation scholarships available for upperclassmen are due by midnight, Feb. 28 and are available at <http://www.truman.edu> by clicking on Student Life / Money / Foundation Scholarships. For more information or questions, contact the Office of Advancement at 785.4133.

The Campus Life, Spirit and Fun Working Group will be seeking input from the campus community regarding ways to create a more vibrant campus experience for students during the University Conference. If interested in sharing ideas, please attend one of the concurrent sessions that will focus on gathering ideas. The first session will take place from 11 a.m.-noon Feb. 20 in Ophelia Parrish 2115. The second session will take place from 2:30-3:30 p.m. Feb. 20 in Magruder Hall 1090. Contact Lou Ann Gilchrist at lcg@truman.edu or 785.4111 with questions. Students who are unable to attend one of the sessions may submit their ideas on the blog at <http://saffairs.truman.edu/clsf/>.
